

A SEVERE STORM MONDAY EVENING

Rain Fell in Torrents.—Fierce Electrical Display.—Wind and Hail.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE DONE

By Lightning.—Houses and Barns Struck.—Storm General Over County.

The rain and electrical storm which visited Seymour late Monday afternoon, was one of the severest the city has ever known.

The rain fell in torrents for nearly an hour, while the crash of thunder and the flash of lightning was almost continuous. The latter was of the forked and jagged variety that is considered most dangerous.

At 4:20 it became almost as dark as night in the city and lights were turned on in business houses and residences.

There was considerable wind and hail during the storm.

The B. & O. S-W. round house was damaged considerably. About one third of the roof was blown off. Two employes narrowly escaped injury when some heavy timbers from the roof fell.

A residence at the corner of Blish and Third streets, occupied by Henry Hoffmeier, was struck by lightning. The chimney was demolished and some shingles were knocked off. Numbers of trees were blown down and other damage done. The service on the traction lines was interfered with considerably. No cars were run on the I. C. & S. for some time on account of trouble at the power house.

Reports received this morning indicated that the storm had been general over this county and adjoining counties.

In some parts of this county the hail was heavy and knocked the cherries off and did some damage to other fruit.

At Jonesville lightning struck the town hall and also a large barn on Gus Kiel's farm east of there. His loss was quite heavy it being estimated at $4,000. A new thrashing outfit was in the property destroyed.

Between Seymour and Crothersville and in the latter town many shade and fruit trees were blown down.

A silo on Henry Coleman's farm near Crothersville was blown down, and also a silo on Charles Blau's farm near the same place.

A frame house belonging to the Zollman heirs west of Medora was struck by lightning and with the contents was destroyed. Warren Brewer and family occupied the house.

Considerable damage was done to the telephone lines of the county, especially the Redding township system.

William Murry of Reddington, lost two mules Monday by lightning striking them during the storm.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Half-brother of J. B. Hull Met Instant Death.—Known Here.

John Gant, of Columbus, a half-brother of James B. Hull, of Seymour, was killed by lightning Monday afternoon. Mr. Hull received the news Monday evening and with his family, left for Columbus on a late car.

At the time he was struck, Mr. Gant was mowing the lawn at his country home near Flatrock. His wife collapsed from the shock when she heard the news and is in a serious condition.

Mr. Gant was 47 years old and a wealthy retired farmer. He was formerly county commissioner and had been prominent in politics and business in the county for years. He has visited here frequently and was expected by Mr. Hull last Sunday but for some reason did not come.

EMANUEL EVERHART

East of Crothersville. Killed by Lightning.

During the storm Monday evening, Emanuel Everhart who lived five miles east of Crothersville in the Ords Spring or Wesley Chapel neighborhood in Scott county, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

He was driving from his bottom farm to his home at the time. Both of the horses he was driving were killed and a boy who was with him, was severely shocked though not dangerously injured.

The deceased was a cousin of Walter Everhart, chief of the fire department in Seymour, and was a brother of the late R. F. Everhart, formerly mayor of this city.

STORM MONDAY

Recalled One That Occurred Twenty-five Years Ago.

The heavy rain and electrical storm Monday evening, recalled to the minds of many the storm which swept over this section twenty-five years ago today.

The date was fixed in the minds of the people because the storm occurred during one of the old Big Sixth celebrations. The celebration that year was in the grove northwest of the city. The down pour of rain was terrific and hundreds of people were thoroughly drenched before they could reach places of shelter in the city.

A Pennsylvania passenger train ran into a washout at Farmington and the baggage man and several others were killed.

Now Sole Proprietor.

J. Herman Pollert has bought the interest of his partner, George F. Hoeverer in the tin shop on South Chestnut street. The shop was opened the first of the year and much of the time since then Mr. Hoeverer has been sick.

NEW WRINKLE IN LICENSES

Provided For Under Liquor Law. Passed By the Last Legislature.

WHOLESALE LICENSE GRANTED

By Commissioners to William Schroer Can Sell in Gallon Quantities.

At their session Monday the county commissioners granted a wholesale liquor license to William Schroer of Seymour.

This license is one of the new wrinkles of the liquor law enacted by the legislature at Indianapolis last winter.

Mr. Schroer opened a whole sale house on South Chestnut street, a short time ago but has only been selling quantities of not less than five gallons as allowed by the government tax.

Under the license granted by the commissioners Monday, he can sell in quantities of one gallon or more. The liquor must not be used on the premises and the gallon sales must be merely incident to the business of selling in larger quantities, a very neat and pleasant provision.

The wholesale license costs $200, one-half of which goes to the city and the other half to the tuition fund, of the county.

It is provided in the law that a wholesale license shall not be counted in any limitation of the number of regular saloon licenses.

These wholesale licenses can be granted for use "in any city or incorporated town where the sale of intoxicating liquor is not forbidden by law or any proceeding thereunder."

Under the provision of the law under which the license Monday was granted, any number of licenses may be granted, allowing gallon sales provided of course that sales of this size are merely "incident" to the regular business. So if at any time the fifteen saloons of Seymour are unable to meet the demands of the thirsty of this locality, there is ample provision for relief. Since the passage of the law wholesale liquor houses have become very numerous in some cities, where the limit of retail licenses has been reached and gallon appetites are numerous.

ENGINEER LAWTON

Thinks Spot Near Jonesville is "Hoodoo Ground."

A Columbus Special says: Engineer John Lawton of the Pennsylvania thinks a spot near Jonesville is "hoodoo ground" for him. He is lying between life and death or scalds received Saturday when the driving rod on his engine broke near Jonesville. One year ago a hoot owl flew into the cab window and the broken glass cut Lawton so badly he was nearly dead before he received medical attention here.

Fred Nuss, eight year old son of George Nuss of Chestnut Ridge, met with an accident early this morning. While handling a flobert rifle he accidentally shot himself in his right foot. The injury was painful but is not considered serious.

Married at Columbus.

Among the early June weddings of especial interest to Columbus people was that of Miss Mary Elizabeth Dickey and Ralph O. Boyer, which took place Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Alexander Sharp, pastor of the Presbyterian church, at his home on Franklin street. The young couple were unattended and left immediately after the ceremony for a short wedding trip to Cincinnati. The bride, who is a handsome blonde, was attired in a modish blue tailored coat suit with hat and accessories to correspond.

Mr. Boyer is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Boyer and is associated with Fred McNeal in the poultry business. He is a superior young man and very popular with his friends. His bride is the younger daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Dickey and the late David Dickey. After graduating from the local high school with the '04 class she went to Oxford, Ohio, the next year and attended Western College. On their return from their bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Boyer will be at home to their friends at the home of her mother at 724 Mechanic street.—Columbus Republican.

Mr. Boyer was private secretary to A. A. Anderson when the latter was with the I. C. & S. Traction Co. and had his office here. During the year he spent in Seymour, he made many friends.

To be Married in September.

The Louisville Herald states that Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Parrish of 1214 East Elm street, New Albany, have announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Madge McClellan Parrish to Albion Ray Ellis, of Washington. The wedding will take place some time in September. Miss McClellan formerly lived in Seymour and is a grand-daughter of Mrs. Sarah McClellan of 116 North Walnut street.

Approaching Marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Glossop announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Alice Violet, to Clarence H. Ahl on Monday, June 12, 1911 at Shabbona, Ills. They will be at home after June 20th at 119½ West Jackson street, Muncie, Ind.

Mr. Ahl is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ahl of this city.

Marriage License.

Farewell Party.

A farewell party was given Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barkhau Monday night at their home by a number of their friends and neighbors. Mr. and Mrs. Barkhau have lived here the greater part of their lives and their friends regret their removal.

They will leave in a few days for their future home in Indianapolis.

Those present at the party spent an enjoyable evening. Refreshments were served.

ATTORNEYS FACE LONG VACATION

Next Term of Jackson Circuit Court Will Not Begin Until October 16.

COUNTY IN A NEW CIRCUIT

Is Cause of the Long Interval Between Terms.—Joined to Lawrence.

The attorneys of Jackson county face a long vacation. Some of them refer to it as a starvation stretch. The next term of the circuit court in the county will not begin until October 16 and that means over four months to wait to earn fees that some of the legal gentlemen have in view.

The long interval between terms is due to the change in the circuits provided by the last legislature. Scott and Jackson were separated by legislative act and Scott was attached to the Jennings and Ripley circuit while Jackson and Lawrence were joined. Monroe which has been in a circuit with Lawrence for a number of years was tacked onto Owen county.

Judge Shea will become the judge of the Lawrence-Jackson circuit in August. The change of prosecutors for the new circuits is not made until the first of next January. If Prosecutor Hayes moves to Seymour from Scottsburg by January, he will be prosecutor for the new circuit for one year. Otherwise he will lose his job. He has not announced what he will do but it is believed he will move here as he opened an office here several months ago.

Judge Shea will go to Scottsburg next Monday to begin a three weeks' term and that will be his last service as regular judge for that county. The second Monday in September he will go to Bedford to begin a five weeks' term and at the close of it, will begin the term at Brownstown.

Quite a number of criminal cases are on the docket for the next term and two of the men awaiting trial, Lens and Franklin, have been unable to give bond and will have to be in jail during the four months before the beginning of the term.

Taken to Prison.

"Skeeter" McBride and Perry Coleman, handcuffed together, were brought here this morning by Sheriff McOsker and taken to Jeffersonville to begin their terms in the reformatory. McBride went for a term of from one to eight years while Coleman's term is two to fourteen. The prisoners dropped off the B. & O. S-W. at the Chestnut street crossing to await the arrival of the traction car. It gave "Skeeter" an opportunity to take a farewell look at the firemen who captured him here a short time ago and made possible this opportunity for a long period of free board.

CHANGE NAME.

Progressive Music Club Becomes the Monday Musicales.

The Progressive Music Club held the closing meeting of its year Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Ida Whitmer of N. Chestnut street. Owing to the confusion of the club's name with that of a local business firm, it was decided to change the name and the club will be known hereafter as the Monday Musicales. The club has won an enviable reputation in Seymour for the high grade musical entertainments which it has brought to our city during the past few years, as well as for the cultivation of higher musical standards among its members. The officers selected for the next year are:

President, Mrs. W. P. Masters.
Vice President, Mrs. Price Matlock.
Rec. Sec'y., Miss Marguerite Thompson.
Cor. Sec'y., Mrs. F. J. Voss.
Treasurer, Mrs. Ida Whitmer.

Hagerty is Exalted Ruler.

Superintendent J. C. Hagerty, of the Indiana Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern, who now has his headquarters in Seymour, Ind., was in the city yesterday. He brought the news with him that he had recently been elected Exalted Ruler of the Seymour Lodge of Elks, and had a conference yesterday with Grand Exalted Ruler August Herrmann. The latter promised to inspect Seymour Lodge during the month. The exact date has not yet been set.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Inherits to Fortune.

Coming home from work, tired, grimy and perspiring, H. A. Collins, a B. & O. Southwestern machinist, was acquainted by letter with the fact that he had fallen heir to $100,000.

Collins is said by a B. & O. Southwestern official to be one of the finest machinists in the employ of the company.

He has worked for the B. & O. Southwestern shops for about a year and lives at Urbana, Ohio.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

Was Re-elected.

Lee E. Swails, a brother of Attorney O. O. Swails, of this city, was re-elected superintendent of schools in Marion county Monday. He was appointed last December to fill out a vacancy caused by the resignation of John R. Carr. He has appointed his sister, Miss Samantha Swails, assistant superintendent.

July Picnic.

The young people of the German Lutheran Church met Monday night and made arrangements for a picnic on July 4 at Mineral Springs. They will charter a car to carry the large number who expect to attend and will use every effort to make the day an enjoyable one.

Misses Eva Cartwright and Sadie Meyers went to Columbus this afternoon to attend a big meeting of Rebekahs tonight. While in that city they will be the guests of Miss Clara Clark.

A message was received today that the body of the late Tharman Ross was shipped from Arizona Saturday and will probably arrive in Seymour Wednesday.

Jacob Slarp, east of Uniontown, lost a valuable horse this morning. It died of lung fever.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

ALEXANDER THE LITTLE.

An American publisher speaks of Alexander the Great as "history's most successful young man."

No! In the name of decent young manhood and right ideas, no!

What is greatness? What is success?

Greatness is goodness successfully employed. Success is the realization of noble ideals.

Well, then, how can it be said that a wholesale highwayman, a despoiler, a butcher of men, is either great or successful? And is it not a little less than criminal to hold up Alexander of Macedon as an exemplar for young men?

When he came to the throne he was under suspicion of having put his father, Philip, to death.

Great?

This egregious tyrant murdered with his own hands some of his most faithful aids. In a drunken spree he killed his most intimate friend and shed crocodile tears over the body.

Successful?

He was successful in crushing the people of all Greece, successful in destroying many gated Thebes in a fit of rage and selling the inhabitants of the city as slaves; successful in destroying another city, the most beautiful in the world—Persepolis—because a Jew woman who joined him in a drunken revel asked him to do it.

Great and successful?

He overran Persia and desolated it. And when he was only thirty-two years of age he died in a fit of delirium tremens.

Let us quit calling him great. In all which should become a man he was deplorably small.

Greatness? Success?

Greatness is of the quality that creates, discovers, succors, uplifts. Success comes in the doing of things really worth while. Greatness and success—real greatness and success—are impossible without goodness. One may do big things without becoming either great or successful.

Put Alexander alongside Columbus, Pasteur, Howard, Lincoln. How he shrinks by comparison!

Jesus of Nazareth lived in a like dark era with Alexander and was but one year older at his death.

Contrast them!

In the years before Christ Alexander might have been called great, but not since men began to write A. D. after the years.

Congressional Salaries.

The regular sessions of congress began on the first Monday in December of each year. The terms of congressmen began on March 4 of the year succeeding their election and extend over a period of two years. Their salaries begin to accrue, therefore, on March 4 and are paid monthly by checks on the treasury at the rate of $7,500 per annum.

ANGRY STRIKERS WRECKED HOUSE

Rioting In Connection With Pennsy Strike.

WOMAN ONE OF THE VICTIMS

Striking Shopmen at West Brownsville Attack House in Which Strikebreakers Were Quartered—Woman Nursing a Baby Was Shot in Breast and a Number of Strikebreakers Badly Beaten.

Brownsville, Pa., June 5.—One of the worst riots that has broken out since the Pennsylvania railroad strike began occurred late Sunday night at West Brownsville. One woman was shot in the breast, three men were wounded in the legs and a score of others were badly beaten. Only three arrests were made. The strikers learned that sixty-five strikebreakers had arrived to work in the West Brownsville shops and were being housed at the home of Michael Sonick. They prepared to attack the Sonick house. The strikers wrecked the house, firing shots and hurling stones through the windows. Mrs. Sonick was seated at the table nursing her baby. She received one of the bullets in the left breast. A riot call was sent in. When the smoke cleared away the police found five strikebreakers lying on the ground beaten almost to a pulp and with bullet wounds in their legs. They are in Memorial hospital. A score of others were badly beaten, but were carried away before the police arrived. The police say there were 200 shots fired. Today the Pennsylvania railroad is paying off the strikebreakers. Sheriff Buff expects much rioting and has sworn in 125 extra deputies.

WAR IN SIGHT

The Situation in the Balkans Again Reported Menacing.

Sofia, June 5.—Newspapers in Cetinje print an alleged interview with Czar Nicholas in which he is quoted as saying that war between Turkey and Russia is inevitable because of Montenegro's peril from the presence of Turkish troops on the frontier. The ministers concur and the populace is greatly excited. All are fully armed and if the Turks drive the Albanians into Montenegro war will follow automatically.

ACCENTUATES THE SITUATION.

Cettinje, June 5.—The Mirdites, the most powerful of all the Albanian tribes, and whose attitude toward Turkey has heretofore been uncertain, have revolted. They have proclaimed Albanian autonomy and have moved to attack Alessio. The Turks are rushing troops to quell the tribe, which numbers about 10,000.

PAVED THE WAY

Alleged Confession Made by Iron Worker Will Aid Prosecution.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 5.—The alleged confession made by John Delaney, structural iron worker, at Muskogee, Okla., to the effect that he was employed by John J. McNamara to inspect all structures being built by non-union labor, prepare drawings of them and indicate where dynamite could be used to the best advantage in destroying them, is regarded as of importance by the authorities here. If substantiated it will make Delaney one of the most important witnesses in the case against the McNamara brothers, charged with conspiring to destroy the Times building and the murder of nineteen employees. Delaney told of meeting McManigal in Salt Lake city, where one job was pulled off, he said.

Joy Ride Ends in Death.

Worcester, Mass., June 5.—Kathryn Ryan, nineteen years old, was killed and her sister Margaret will die as a result of injuries received at the sunrise end of an all-night joy ride. John F. Quarn, owner of the auto, ran it into a telephone pole near Lake Quinsigamond. Three others in the car received slight injuries.

Keeping an Eye on Castro.

Washington, June 5.—Latest advices of the state department indicate that Castro, exiled former president of Venezuela, is still in Lisbon. The department is closely watching his movements and relying upon the co-operation of other governments to prevent his return to Venezuela.

She Defied the Conventions.

New York, June 5.—A woman proceeded along Broadway puffing a cigarette and followed by a crowd of jeering boys. A policeman arrested her after making her throw the cigarette away. Recorder Mara lectured her and sent her to the county jail for thirty days.

A Mystery of the Sea.

Paris, June 5.—The destroyers that went to sea in quest of the aeroplane reported to have been seen floating fifty miles off Toulon have reported that they were unable to find a trace of the machine. No aviator in France is known to be missing.

3,000 Marched In Parade For Suffrage

WOMEN to the number of 3,000 participated in America's first big equal suffrage parade, held in New York recently. Incidentally there were eighty-nine men in line, members of the Men's League For Woman Suffrage. The women marchers comprised architects, typists, aviators, explorers, nurses, physicians, actresses, shirt waist makers, cooks, painters, writers, chauffeurs, sculptors, journalists, editors, milliners, hairdressers, of freeholders, librarians, laundresses, decorators, teachers, farmers, artists' models and even pilots with a steamboat painted on their banner. They marched in perfect step to the music of many brass bands and a band of Scotch pipers.

From a good many points of view it was the best looking parade New York ever has seen. Fifth avenue was lined with onlookers for the entire line of march, and there were frequent outbursts of handclapping and cheers of approval.

From Other States.

The success of the parade, at least the organization of six of the eight divisions, was due to the Woman's Political union, of which Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch is president. The Woman Suffrage party, headed by a brass band, had a division to itself. The equal franchise group, the suffrage clubs of the state and the men's league formed still another division, with a band to lead it, and there was a final division of suffragists coming from Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut.

The Pennsylvania group had one of the two floats in the procession. This was the Liberty bell float, a floral bell hanging high and beneath it a group of Quaker girls from Philadelphia in costumes representing historic women.

Mrs. Belmont Didn't March.

Mrs. Belmont did not march, but her organization, the Political Equality association, was in line. Mrs. Wolston Brown, daughter of the late Robert Ingersoll, carried the peace banner.

Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch headed her own organization, the Women's Political union. In this division also was Mrs. Blatch's daughter, Mrs. Nora de Forrest, the engineer. Mrs. Kinkaid and Mrs. Frances Maule Bjorkman led a band of women from Colorado and Wyoming who actually have voted and who got much applause.

MUNCIE LIQUOR FIGHT GROWING

Both Sides Declare They Have Won Out.

COURT MAY HAVE TO SETTLE IT

Following Recent Victory of the Wets in Option Election, the Drys Began Circulation of Remonstrances Which Have Covered the Town, Though Wets Declare They Can Defeat Those Circulated in Certain Wards.

Muncie, Ind., June 5.—With both sides declaring they have won in the remonstrance fight, the question whether Muncie will be "wet" or "dry" is undecided still, and the result depends on the decision of the board of county commissioners, and possibly the higher courts, where a contest is expected to be waged.

Although the result is uncertain, the "drys" are proclaiming a clean-cut victory.

The "wets" concede that they have no hopes for a victory in the First, Third, Fourth and Fifth wards, but in the Second and Sixth they feel confident of winning out in the long run by assailing the signatures on the remonstrances in the downtown wards, many of which they declare are void, although they express no hopes of a saloon being in Muncie until the question has been decided by the court.

Seventy-four applications for saloon licenses have been filed, but the commissioners, in case the city or Second ward should be declared "wet," can grant only twenty-five licenses under the restrictions made under the Proctor law limiting the number of saloons to one to every 1,000 inhabitants.

WOMEN DESPONDENT

Two of Them at Hammond End Unhappy Lives.

Hammond, Ind., June 5.—Despondency is thought to have driven two Hammond women to suicide. Mrs. Frank Comiskey, thirty-three years old, died after several hours of suffering from pain caused by carbolic acid, of which she drank two ounces. The body of Mrs. Agnes Kozarewicz, twenty-six years old, was found in the prairie on the outskirts of the city after a three-day hunt. Beside her lay toasted bread on which was a thick layer of rat poison, and apparently she had eaten of this.

Fatal Wreck on the Wabash.

Lafayette, Ind., June 5.—One man was killed and two were seriously injured when a fast freight on the Wabash railroad ran into a cut of cars two miles east of here. The engine was overturned and Fireman C. E. Phallabaum of Peru was caught beneath it and crushed to death. Engineer W. E. Ernest and brakeman Robert Ewie, also of Peru, were hurled to the side of the track, both being injured internally.

Absorbed Deadly Poison.

Noblesville, Ind., June 5.—Thomas Mitchener, seventy-six years old, is dead at his home near this city from the effects of inhaling fumes from paris green. He had been working with a solution of the poison several days, spraying fruit trees. He was taken sick suddenly and suffered intensely until his death.

No Ground For Prosecution.

Bloomington, Ind., June 5.—Thirty cases filed against Indiana university students who were charged with voting illegally in the local option election last Wednesday, have been dismissed on the ground that there can be no prosecution under the law governing local option elections.

Jury Upheld "Unwritten Law."

Indianapolis, June 5.—James R. Wood, who shot and killed Jasper Bucy Jan. 27, 1911, following a story his wife told him of her relations with Bucy, and who was acquitted by a jury in criminal court on the ground of temporary insanity, has been discharged from custody.

Must Be Sold to Pay Debts.

Wabash, Ind., June 5.—Judge N. N. Antrim of Peru, who heard the Eagles' theater case after it had been sent back for second trial by the supreme court, has handed down his decision. The theater, constructed at a cost of $60,000, was ordered sold to pay claims.

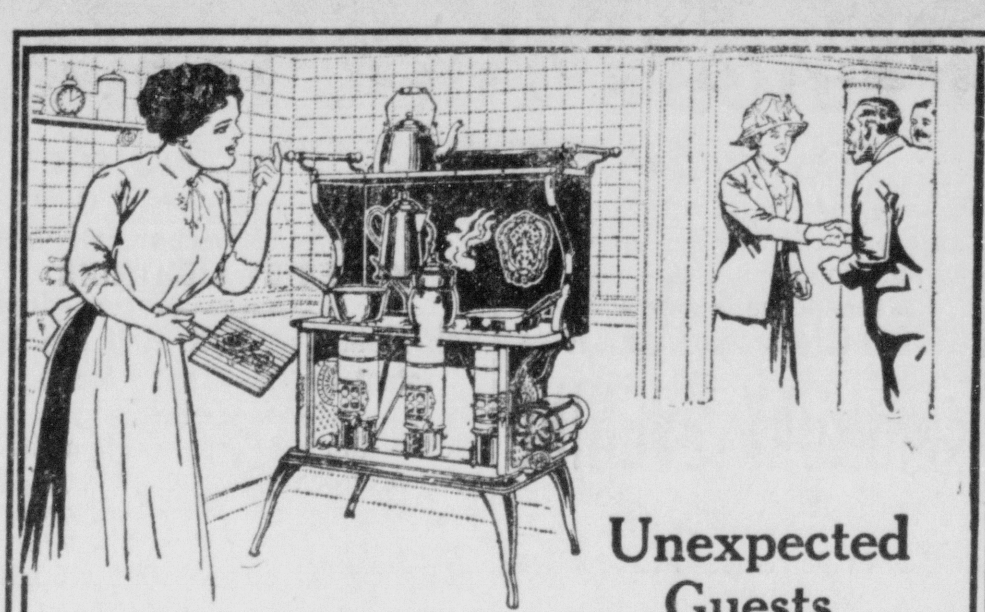

State Sunday School Convention.

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 5.—One thousand delegates and hundreds of visitors are expected to attend the annual convention of the Indiana Sunday School association in this city beginning June 8.

Storm Damage at Norwalk.

Norwalk, O., June 5.—One man was killed and three others injured by lightning, small buildings were blown from their foundations, many large trees were uprooted and blown down, together with telephone and telegraph poles all over the city, in a storm that swept this city for about an hour Sunday afternoon.

Many of the insurrecto generals are to be retained in the service of the Mexican army.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

PREPARING for war is a gruesome business. Perhaps those engaged in making ready for the great civil war in 1861 were too busy to think much of the tragic side, but at this distance it is apparent. For to us children of peace it is difficult to understand how millions of men and women can become so wrought up by the fighting fever as to risk life and all for a cause, though doubtless we would do the same thing if the call should come. Yet we look with a certain awe and wonder at the spectacle.

Measured by the number of battles fought and the amount of blood shed 1861 was the least important year of the conflict between the states, but we cannot so estimate it. There are other factors in the reckoning. Both the north and the south were going into untried fields. For the most part they had no precedents. They were facing novel problems and had to decide new issues, the hardest task men ever undertake. They were at the parting of the ways and were required to choose the directions they would go, carve out the ways they would follow and create the tools for the work in hand. It is as difficult to organize a war as to conduct it when organized. It is as great a feat to call an army into being as to win battles with that army when it becomes a fighting entity. We his cooped up forces. Then on June 10 came the battle, ill starred for the north, resulting not only in defeat, but in the loss of two gallant officers.

Battle of Big Bethel.

Big Bethel is about ten miles from Fortress Monroe and is on the road from Hampton to Newport News. Nearer the fortress is Little Bethel, and the Confederates had forces at both points. These troops had annoyed the Union outposts and had even taken a few prisoners. They had also impressed the negroes of nearby plantations and compelled them to help dig intrenchments. General Butler stood this as long as he could and then ordered an offensive movement, putting General Pierce in charge. On the night of June 9 General Pierce ordered two regiments under Colonels Duryea and Townsend from Fortress Monroe and one regiment from Newport News under Colonel Bendix to meet near Little Bethel and take the enemy by surprise in the early morning. That the troops might distinguish each other from the enemy in the darkness they were told to tie white cloths about their arms. Colonel Bendix afterward claimed he had never been informed of this arrangement.

With Colonel Duryea's regiment in the lead and Colonel Townsend's following about two hours apart, a rapid march was made. In passing through a wood Colonel Townsend's ethics in that institution and although only twenty-seven years old at the time of the fight had seen service at Tampa, Fla., in the Indian troubles. He was not favorable to the expedition against Big Bethel, and it is said he believed it would result in his own death. Nevertheless, he went uncomplainingly, and his two howitzers did valiant service throughout the fight. Just as orders were given to retire from the field he was struck in the head by a cannon ball and killed instantly. He was the first regular army officer to fall in the civil war.

Major Theodore Winthrop led one of the most thrilling charges of the day. So galling was the Confederate fire that his dead were strewn across the morass. At the head of his men Winthrop reached the fence near the enemy's works, leaped upon a log, waved his sword and shouted: "Come on, boys! One charge and the day is ours!" That word was his last, as he was shot dead. Major Winthrop was a graduate of Yale and a distinguished writer. He was only thirty-three.

Despite the fierce fighting the losses other than these two officers were small. On the Union side there were sixteen killed, thirty-four wounded and five missing. The Confederate losses were said to have been six killed. The generalship on the Federal side has been much condemned, although no formal investigation into the battle was ever made. Strange to say, the feature most criticised was the order to retreat. Had that not been given it is contended that the Union troops must certainly have won the day, as they outnumbered the Confederates two to one. This, assert the military experts, was even a greater blunder than that of Colonel Bendix in firing on his own troops. Anybody may mistake the color of a uniform on a dark night, but no real general will order a retreat when his men are on the eve of victory or when he has an advantage in numbers sufficient to assure him a victory by a little more fighting. Had it not been for Greble's howitzers the day might have ended in an utter rout for the Federals.

Movement on Harpers Ferry.

Aside from this engagement, the attention of the country in early June, 1861, was concentrated on the movements toward Harpers Ferry. There were now three armies threatening the Confederates at that point. McClellan at Grafton was within striking distance, having command of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for a part of the way. Patterson with his Pennsylvania troops was approaching daily, and to his support several regiments from Washington were hurrying. A clash seemed imminent, and the country expected that any day would witness there the first great battle of the war. General Joseph E. Johnston was in command of the Confederates, however, and he was ever a cautious commander. He did not wait for the Union troops to strike, but on June 15 evacuated, thus saving his army to decide the day at Bull Run.

In the meantime General McClellan was busy in West Virginia. After the rout of the Confederates at Philippi he was preparing to follow them and bring on another engagement. This did not transpire for a month, however, when there was another small battle at Laurel Hill.

Before this time General Beauregard had taken charge at Manassas.

HEARST WANTS SOME OF COLLIER'S MONEY

Newspaper Man Sues Weekly for Libel.

New York, June 3.—Alleging libel, William Randolph Hearst, editor of the New York Journal, has sued Robert J. Collier, editor and publisher of Collier's Weekly, for $500,000. The issue of Collier's Weekly dated today contained an article written by Will Irwin, which stated that theatrical advertisements followed editorials written by Arthur Brisbane and pictures drawn by Nell Brinkley.

The complaint states that Robert J. Collier and Peter F. Collier instituted a suit against Mr. Hearst on Sept. 13, 1907; that the suit was never pressed for trial, but that the Colliers notified the defendant, Mr. Hearst, that unless the suit was settled an attack might be expected.

Afterward, the complaint says, Mr. Hearst learned that Will Irwin had been employed to write a series of attacks upon the plaintiff (Mr. Hearst) for publication in the defendant's weekly, and by letter of Sept. 3, 1910, notified Robert J. Collier that he would be held responsible.

The Wreck of the Maine.

Havana, June 5.—Major Ferguson, the United States army engineer in charge of the work on the Maine, expects to begin to pump the water from behind the coffer dam today. It will be more than a month before the wreck has been uncovered sufficiently to enable the experts to determine whether she was destroyed by an explosion from the outside or the inside.

Will Meet at Jubilee.

Washington, June 3.—President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt, it is said, will meet next Tuesday in Baltimore. This will be the first meeting in public of the two men since Mr. Taft was inaugurated. It will be at the jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Oo.

TUESDAY, JUNE 6, 1911.

The county board of review which held its first meeting Monday and will be in session the remainder of the month, will, it is understood, probably raise the assessment of real estate in Vernon and Salt Creek townships to correspond with the assessments in the other nine townships. In the latter the township assessors increased the real estate assessments generally about ten per cent. over the last apportionment.

Miss Hannah Wainseott received a message Monday evening stating that her brother, Chris Wainseott, who is a patient in the Southern Indiana Insane hospital at Madison, was in a serious condition. Miss Wainseott went to Madison this morning.

Havana Tried to Make Diaz Forget His Troubles.

Havana, June 5.—From the time that Diaz came into the harbor at dusk Saturday night until his ship, the Ypiranga, carried him out past Morro castle again at 10 o'clock Sunday morning on the final lap of exile to Europe, Havana did all it could to make him forget that he is not still the honored president of a neighboring republic. When the steamship left its anchorage Diaz and his wife stood on the captain's bridge and received farewells from hundreds of loyal Mexicans crowding small craft below. Again the Ypiranga's band played the Mexican national air and the final notes were drowned by rising shouts of "Viva Diaz" from those in pleasure boats and passengers on the steamship. Some more enthusiastic Mexicans shot off day fireworks from a point ashore, and the air was filled with red, white and green parachutes.

Judge Oscar H. Montgomery left Pasadena, California, Monday for several points in Colorado. He will spend some time at Colorado Springs, and expects to arrive at home by July 4. He says he is feeling fine since his trip west, having gained seventeen pounds in weight. His friends here will be glad to know of his greatly improved health.

THIS WILL BE A REAL INQUIRY

Lorimer Probe to Be Pushed to Bottom.

A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION

Senate Committee Decides to Hold Its Sessions in Washington, Where All the Power of the Senate Will Be Brought to Bear to Compel Witnesses to Testify and to Produce Necessary Papers in the Case.

Washington, June 6.—The action of the senate committee on privileges and elections assures a thorough investigation of all the charges of corruption clouding the election of Senator Lorimer. A select committee of eight senators was appointed to probe into every phase of the Lorimer charges.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa, former "trust buster" of the department of justice, was put upon the committee and will be given an opportunity to pursue his inquiry into the part which the beef trust and the lumber trust is alleged to have played in raising funds to elect Lorimer. He has been anxious for service on the Lorimer committee because he thinks that a proper investigation would disclose the fact that the beef and lumber trusts raised a huge fund to elect Lorimer. Senator La Follette averred on the floor of the senate that the two interests named had subscribed more than $200,000 and that Lee O'Neill Browne, Democratic leader in the Illinois legislature disbursed more than $100,000 of this sum.

The committee authorized will be composed of the following senators: Dillingham, chairman, and Gamble, Jones and Kenyon, Republicans, and Johnston, Fletcher, Kern and Lea, Democrats. Senators Dillingham, Gamble, Johnston and Fletcher voted for Lorimer when the case was before the regular session of congress, and Senator Jones voted against him. Kenyon, Kern and Lea are known to be anti-Lorimer, so that the committee is evenly divided on the general merits of the case.

The action taken in the committee was in the form of a resolution which was adopted by a unanimous vote and which Senator Dillingham was authorized to report to the senate. It is thought that the resolution will be promptly adopted by the senate. It may be stated with authority that most of the sessions of the committee will be held in Washington and the witnesses will be brought here and the powers of the senate employed to compel them to testify and produce necessary papers.

PACIFICATION

This Is the Object of Army Now En Route to Lower California.

El Paso, Tex., June 6.—Thirteen hundred Mexican federals have left Chihuahua en route to Lower California to "pacify" the Magonistas and Socialists who have set up an independent republic in that Mexican territory. The soldiers are under command of General Luque.

Word comes from Lower California that General Pryce has sent additional men, arms and ammunition to resist the federals and fight for the independent republic which they have set up with a son of the famous Confederate General Mosby as president.

SENATE'S DEADLOCK

Left That August Body Without a Presiding Officer.

Washington, June 6.—The senate was unable to proceed with business yesterday. That body was without a presiding officer, and after making a fruitless effort to elect one, adjourned until today at 2 o'clock. Vice President Sherman was absent in New York. He had designated a senator to preside for one day last week and thereby exhausted his power under the rules. There is no president pro tem of the senate, Senator Frye having resigned and the senate having been unable to elect a successor.

Conductor's Perilous Position. Chattanooga, Tenn., June 6.—David P. Wrinkle, aged forty years, a street-car conductor, had his head torn from his body by striking a steel girder of a viaduct while standing on the running board of an open car.

PETER PLATKOW.

Known as "Pete the Painter," Wanted For Murder in London.

SUSPECTED OF BEING "PETE THE PAINTER"

Manila Police Believe They Have Noted Fugitive.

Manila, June 6.—The Philippine authorities are holding a stowaway found on the British steamer Proteslaus, which has arrived here. The man embarked on the vessel at Singapore while coal was being taken on, and it is suspected that he is "Pete the Painter," the Russian anarchist, for whom the British police have been searching in connection with the murder of three policemen in Houndsditch, of which "The Battle of Sydney Street" was the sequel.

The officials of the British consulate here, while skeptical that the man will prove to be "Pete the Painter," are having him held, pending an investigation. The Proteslaus left Liverpool April 30 and is bound for Seattle.

PLUCKY MINERS

Dug Their Way Out After Outsiders Had Given Them Up.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 6.—Two miners were entombed in the Barnum mine of the Pennsylvania Coal company at Pittston for the past two days, dug their way out and saved their lives after a desperate struggle. They are John Welsh, and his keeper, Mike Sobel. They were at work in a heading when a mass of rock fell behind them, cutting off their way to the main gangway and the bottom of the shaft. Welsh, a clever miner, saw there was no hope of escaping through the rock, but thought there was a chance by digging from the face of the tunnel to reach the bottom of an old cave hole, which he knew was near there. From the time he decided until the escape, the men dug steadily with the exception of the short period they took to rest when they were exhausted.

There was a little cold tea in the dinner buckets, and this stretched as far as it would go. When they got out they had to be carried home, so weak from exhaustion and the long strain were they. The officials of the mine believed they had been crushed to death by the rock falling upon them.

Dangers of Target Shooting.

South Bend, Ind., June 6.—Philip Hans, aged seventy-six, was struck in the head by a bullet from a target rifle as he sat on the porch of his home. His condition is serious.

ALL DO HONOR TO A NOTED CITIZEN

Cardinal Gibbons the Recipient of Signal Tribute.

MANY NOTABLES ARE PRESENT

President Taft, Vice President Sherman, Former President Roosevelt, Speaker Clark, Chief Justice White and Other Dignitaries Gather at Baltimore to Help Celebrate the Cardinal's Golden Jubilee.

Baltimore, June 6.—A nonsectarian celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Cardinal Gibbons to the priesthood and twenty-fifth of his elevation to the cardinalate is being held in the Fifth Regiment armory here this afternoon as a tribute to the cardinal for his distinguished public services as an American citizen.

Governor Crothers is presiding and the principal addresses will be made by President Taft, Vice President Sherman, former President Roosevelt, Speaker Clark of the house of representatives, Chief Justice White of the supreme court, Senator Root of New York, and former Speaker Cannon. Mayor Preston and the cardinal also will make addresses.

The general ecclesiastical celebration of the dual anniversary will be held next November.

EVANS CONFESSES

Ohio Legislator Paves Way For Further Indictments.

Columbus, O., June 6.—As a result of the breaking down of Representative Owen J. Evans of Stark county, a member of the house's notorious calendar committee, another batch of indictments against Ohio legislators is forecasted. Evans has confessed taking bribes. There are three indictments against him. He pleaded guilty to accepting $700 from E. C. Miller of Akron to defeat the stringent salary loan agency bill. Judge Kincaid at once fined him $500 and let him off without imprisonment sentence on the understanding that he would tell all he knew of legislative corruption to the grand jury. His attorney, T. H. Clark, told the court that a big defense fund had been assured to prevent Evans's confession, but he had advised the confession which Evans made.

It is believed that a number of legislators will be involved by Evans's statements to the grand jury. Evans is a Canton merchant and at the legislative caucus in January placed the name of Atlee Pomerene in nomination for United States senator.

CONVICTED OF LIBEL

Somerville Preacher and Editor Failed to Guard Their Utterances.

Boston, June 6.—The Rev. E. Eben Bailiss of Somerville was taken to East Cambridge jail and will spend some time there unless he can pay a fine of $250, which he says he is unable to do. This is the result of the sustaining by Judge Hardy in the superior court of the verdict of guilty which was found against the Rev. Mr. Bailiss some time ago, when he was tried for criminally libelling former Mayor John M. Woods of Somerville.

J. M. Pratt, publisher of the Somerville Sun, who was found guilty at the same time, will appear for sentence today. The prosecution for libel grew out of a charge of drunkenness against all the organized militia regiments and battalions of the other New England states.

John Bigelow in Critical State. Highland Falls, N. Y., June 6.—John Bigelow, the author and diplomat, who is now in his ninety-fourth year, was stricken with a severe attack of intestinal trouble last Wednesday night, and his physician says that his recovery, of which there is little hope, depends entirely upon the vitality of the aged patient. All his relatives are gathered at Mr. Bigelow's bedside.

Drifted Fifteen Miles on Log. Macalester, Okla., June 6.—Mrs. Sallie Trippett, a bride, aged eighteen, supposed to have been drowned when her mother and two other children perished in the flood which overturned their wagon in Canadian river, was rescued in Gaines creek. She grasped a log when thrown from the wagon and clung to it while drifting fifteen miles down the river.

Snobbery in Army Rebuked. Washington, June 6.—President Taft has ordered the secretary of war to administer a severe public reprimand to Colonel Joseph H. Garrard, commanding officer of the military post at Fort Myer, Va., for exhibiting prejudice against a private in his command because of the soldier's Jewish extraction and the social standing of his family.

Night Riders Again Busy. Bowling Green, Ky., June 6.—The farm of C. B. Tucker, who lives near Plano, this county, was visited at night by a band of men, who after scraping three tobacco beds and leaving a bundle of switches lying on his doorstep, took their leave.

Trade at Home.

Here are ten good reasons for trading with your home business people:

1. You examine your purchase and are assured of satisfaction before investing your money.
2. Your home merchant is always ready and willing to make right any error or any defective article purchased of him.
3. When you are sick or for any cause it is necessary for you to ask for credit, you can go to the local merchant. Could you ask it of a mail order house?
4. If a merchant is willing to extend you credit you should give him the benefit of your cash trade.
5. Your home merchant pays local taxes and exerts every effort to build and better your market, thus increasing both the value of city and country property.
6. The mail order merchant does not lighten your taxes or in any way hold the value of your property.
7. The mail order merchant does nothing for the benefit of your markets of real estate values.
8. If your town is good enough to live in it is good enough to spend money in.
9. The best citizens in your community patronize home industry. Why not be one of the best citizens?
10. If you give your home merchant an opportunity to compete by bringing your order to him in the quantities you buy out of town, he will demonstrate that, quality considered, he will save you money.

ROBERT O. BAILY

Prominent Official of Treasury Department Here.

Robert O. Baily of Washington, D. C., a prominent official of the treasury department, arrived in Seymour last night and remained here until the 8:26 Pennsylvania train this morning when he left for Indianapolis.

His visit has occasioned considerable gossip among some of the citizens interested in sites for the proposed federal building. He is the official who is recognized as having the final say in determining the location of post office buildings.

While in the city Baily did not interview the owners of sites for which bids were received but he had blue prints with him and it is known that this morning he looked over at least two sites, the one at the southeast corner of Chestnut and Third streets and the one at the southeast corner of Second and Ewing streets. He did not, while here, give any indications as to what the decision of the department will be regarding a site. He spent the night at the New Lynn hotel.

The discovery of her mistake called for a feast at noon today and Mr. Anderson is now trying to figure out that Wednesday is really the right date.

The annexation fever in Lawrence county is strong. Some time ago Flinn township in the eastern part of the county was wiped off the map and divided among the adjoining townships. This week some of the residents of Perry township petitioned the commissioners for the annexation of that township to Indian Creek township. The commissioners refused the request.

Nerve and Confidence.

The following from the Columbus Republican affords a good example of genuine nerve and confidence.

Some people write requests for money and never enclose a stamp. The Rev. W. F. Diehl of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, not only encloses a stamp but he also encloses a special delivery stamp so he may get returns quicker.

A Columbus man today received a letter from the Rev. Mr. Diehl, in which the minister asked for $500. He said his parents were sick in Germany and he wanted to go and see them. He asked that a check for $500 be sent him immediately and mentioned the fact that he had enclosed a special delivery stamp to hasten the money. He added that he would make arrangements to repay the $500 providing the local man cared to have the money back.

The man who received the letter says he never heard of the Rev. Mr. Diehl, and it is hardly necessary to say that he is not going to send the money.

The commissioners Monday allowed the usual batch of claims and exempted a Redding township citizen, who is blind from paying poll tax. The board will hold a special session June 20 to receive bids for the new furniture for the court house.

Man a Working Machine.

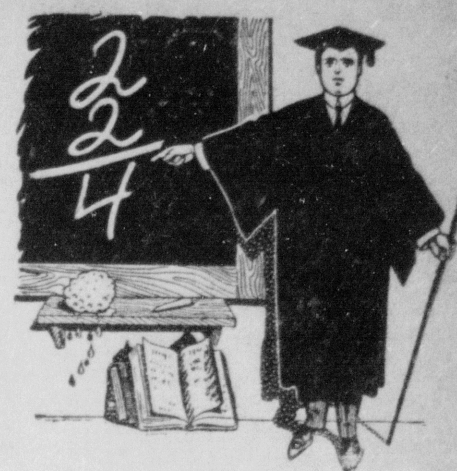

Man of today is as near a machine as he probably ever can become, and still exist. To keep him in perfect "running order" he has to be treated as such. Now, if your watch or auto had slipped a cog, or was "clogged up" with foreign matter threatening its very existence unless removed, would you apply acid or dope to rid it of foreign matter or to adjust its parts?

—As With Auto and Watch—so with the human body, it gets out of running order through the process of life and needs repairing. No defective machine can turn out good work. Every day that an "unclean" watch or auto, or any other machine is compelled to run, wears seriously its vital parts and saps its vitality. The longer you try to work while the body machinery is out of gear, the greater will be the damage it suffers. Health depends upon the human machine being kept in good mechanical order. Adjustment of the human body is the particular and special work of —The Spaulhurst Osteopaths—That they are expert body mechanists, know what to do, and how to correctly fix what is mechanically wrong with the body structure is evidenced by kindly expressions of those who have given their treatment a fair trial. They give a little more satisfaction than is expected and make good every promise. They do not claim to perform miracles. Aid nature to health—that's all. Adjust the human machinery and nature makes the cure.

You are invited to call, consult and learn what ails you without charge. Do it today. Yes, you! It may not be too late. First National Bank Building, Seymour, Phone 557.

NEW YORK PLANS STATE FARM COLONY FOR THE HOBO

Successful European Idea The Experiment May Be to Be Tried In This Country Widely Copied by Other States

THERE are half a million tramps and vagrants in the United States. This is not an official figure, for no tramp census has ever been taken, but it is the estimate of the national committee on vagrancy and of other organizations that have studied the problem of the vagabond and what to do with him. This vast army is now engaged in a march across the country, swarming out of the cities, where it has been in winter quarters; out of the jails and penitentiaries and almshouses, where it has been supported in idleness and comparative luxury during the past few months, and spreading out through the villages and country districts.

New York First to Move.

As the state which has more of these "knights of the road" than any other New York is now endeavoring to find a better way of dealing with the evil than the present one of passing the tramps on from one community to another, with an enforced rest now and then in some penitentiary or jail which does not in the least inconvenience them and serves only to make them more confirmed in the belief that the public owes them a living and in the determination to collect it by their time honored methods. The attention of the state authorities has been fixed upon this subject by the collection of statistics recently, which showed that there has been a very great increase in vagrancy in the state within the past year and that the number of homeless and unemployed wanderers is several times as great as it was only five years ago.

As a result of the discovery that the methods heretofore followed are far more satisfactory to the hobo than to the public and that they serve only to increase the number of beggars and vagabonds a bill is now before the state legislature providing a new remedy for the evil. This is nothing less than a proposal to set the tramp to work. The very idea of such a thing is enough to horrify Dusty Rhodes and all his clan, but their wishes are not to be consulted in the matter.

Gist of the Bill.

Hereafter, if the bill becomes law, Panhandle Pete whenever he runs afoul of the law, instead of a week or two in the county jail spent in swapping yarns or playing cards with others of his kind around a comfortable stove, will be promptly shipped to the state farm and will be forced to apply himself to hoe and shovel in tilling the soil and woeing it to a productiveness that will pay the cost of his keep. The length of time that he will continue this occupation will depend upon the judgment of those in charge.

M'KINLEY'S VOTE.

Miss Tarbell Tells How He Came to Cast It For the Silver Bill.

Trades and deals formed the lifeblood of politics in the old days even more than now. An interesting story is told along this line by Ida M. Tarbell in the June number of the American Magazine. In part she says:

"The surprising trades and compromises that Mr. McKinley made in putting through the tariff bill of 1890 were part and parcel of his insensibility to the moral side of the doctrine of protection. One of the most amazing of his acts was his voting for the silver bill. He had persuaded the western senators to support his tariff bill, in much of which they did not believe, and they in turn expected him to support their silver bill, in which he did not believe. I cannot say that Mr. McKinley had promised beforehand to give them support—I do not know—but I do know that when the silver bill came to vote Mr. McKinley sought his friend and political opponent, Roger Q. Mills of Texas, and asked: 'What can I do? I do not want to vote for this bill; I do not believe in it.' And Mr. Mills said to him: 'You can do nothing else. They voted for your bill on the understanding that you would support theirs. There is nothing else to do.' These are protectionist morals. Could there be a better training school in legislative cynicism and callousness?"

From Berne to Italy.

By the completion of the Latschberg tunnel in two years Berne will realize its ambition of over half a century to secure a direct line to Italy, and the Swiss capital expects to benefit much thereby.

If he gets the work habit strongly enough to want to continue it he will be released as soon as he gains a fair knowledge of farm work and thereafter will find no difficulty in maintaining himself, for there is always a shortage of farm labor in New York. If he is an incorrigible one, experience of the farm colony will be enough, and as soon as he is released he will make a bee line for the state border and will shun the Empire State forevermore. In any case it is the opinion of those who are urging the plan that the public will be relieved of a large share of the expense of maintaining him, which, according to the estimate of the state board of charities, amounts to over $2,000,000 a year in the expenses of jails and penitentiaries alone.

Plan Successful Abroad.

This plan is a brand new one in the United States, but it has been employed for years in European countries and is said to have been highly successful there. The largest of these European colonies is located at Merxplas, Belgium, and has 5,000 inmates. Germany has thirty-four of these colonies in different parts of the empire. Switzerland, which is the only country in the world that has solved the tramp problem, has done it largely through the farm colony which is located at Witzwil, in the canton of Berne. This Swiss tramp farm consists of 2,000 acres. Good gravel roads traverse its fields. No fences, walls or signs tell the visitor when he has entered the prison grounds. Here and there are substantial farmhouses, each with a large, plain, practical barn. A paid farmer lives with his family and four working prisoners at each of these outposts, where about thirty cows are kept. In the center of the farm is a group of buildings, including the director's house, a cell house and large barns and workshops.

This farming enterprise, in which most of the work is done by prisoners, has turned out to be a good business investment for the canton. There has been expended upon it $250,000, and its present valuation is $550,000, an average gain for the time the institution has been in operation of over $13,000 a year.

Other States May Copy.

Five-sixths both of the gross and the net industrial receipts of the farm are from agriculture. Yearly there are sold $20,000 worth of cattle and hogs, $12,000 worth of milk and $40,000 worth of other agricultural products, and through the winter 400 hogs and 800 cattle are kept.

The charitable organizations of New York, the mayors, chiefs of police and city judges of its various cities are all in favor of the adoption of the farm colony idea. It is believed that it will greatly decrease the number of tramps in the state, teach some of them to become industrious and self-supporting workers, save the millions of dollars now paid out by the people of the state for their maintenance and do away with the social danger that exists in the presence of these undesirable in the unpolluted rural sections of the state. The experiment is one that will be watched with interest. If successful it is likely to be widely copied by other states.

EXCLUSIVE HOSPITAL.

Wealthy Men of Boston Are Back of a $500,000 Project.

Backed by prominent men of Boston, a hospital is to be established in that city which will be exclusively for the wealthy. The promoters of the hospital figure on its paying at least 5 per cent dividends.

The plan has grown out of the curious conditions which persons of ample means face when they seek in Boston the best medical treatment and such comfort or even luxury in hospital accommodations as they are able and willing to pay for. The public hospitals of Boston, intended mainly for the ill poor, make little provision for well to do patients, and the latter class can, in fact, secure the benefits of treatment by the staffs of the large hospitals only by accepting conditions which are repugnant to them.

The corporation is to be formed with a capital stock of $500,000, divided into two classes of shares. There will be twenty-five shares of common stock, paying no dividends, but carrying the voting power, to be held by fifteen physicians and by ten business men, who will form the board of directors. The other 4,975 shares will be preferred stock, with 5 per cent cumulative dividends, but with no voting power.

TO MEMORY OF KING VICTOR EMANUEL II

Rome the Scene of Patriotic Enthusiasm.

Rome, June 5.—With patriotic enthusiasm 60,000 persons crowded the square below the gigantic monument to Victor Emmanuel II, which was unveiled Sunday. The monument was surrounded by soldiers, diplomats, senators, ministers, deputies, mayors, army and navy officers and public officials. As a small band of Garibaldi veterans ascended the stairway leading to the platform at the base of the monument the crowd burst forth with cheers.

Queen Helene, the Dowager Queen Margherita, and Marie Pia, grandmother of the deposed king of Portugal, the dukes of Genoa, Aosta and Abruzzi, the counts of Turin and Udine, and the royal children drove from the Quirinal escorted by the life guards, the king following.

When the monument was unveiled by Victor Emmanuel III, the bands played and there was an artillery salute of 101 guns, while all flags were lowered in salute. The inaugural address was delivered by Giovanni Giolitti, the Italian premier.

Nine survivors of Garibaldi's British legion were present bearing the union jack, which was the only foreign flag displayed. No Socialists nor Republicans were in attendance.

A Hopeful Message to Scalp Sufferers and Men Who's Hair is Thinning.

Dandruff now—bald later. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and scalp cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it doesn't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp diseases.

Learning from leading fellow druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the A. J. Pellens Drug Store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that it is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO, the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germ of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranteed by druggists everywhere and in Seymour by A. J. Pellens.

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Rohlf

A man stood at my back—not looking at me, but at the fellow in front of us. A quiet "Hush!" sounded in my ear, and again I stood still, but only for an instant.

The man at the fence, aroused by my movement perhaps, had turned and, seeing our two figures, started to fly in the opposite direction. Instinctively I darted forward in pursuit, but was soon passed by the man behind me. This caused me to slacken, for I had recognized this latter as he flew by as Sweetwater, the detective, and knew that he would do this work better than myself.

But I reckoned without my host. He went only as far as the spot where the man had been standing. When in my astonishment I advanced upon him there he wheeled about quite naturally in my direction and, accosting me by name, remarked in his genial offhand manner:

"There is no need for us to tire our legs in a chase after that man. I know him well enough."

"And who?" I began.

A quizzical smile answered me. The light was now in our faces and I had a perfect view of his. Its expression quite disarmed me, but I knew, as well as if he had spoken, that I should receive no other reply to my half formed question.

"Are you going back into town?" he asked, as I paused and looked down at the umbrella swinging in his hand. I was sure that he had not held this umbrella when he started by me on the run. "If so, will you allow me to walk beside you for a little way?"

I could not refuse him; besides, I was not sure that I wanted to. "You are quite welcome," said I, and again cast my eye at the umbrella.

"You are wondering where I got this," he remarked, looking down at it in his turn. "I found it leaning against the fence. It gives me all the clew I need to our fleet footed friend. Mr. Ranelagh, will you credit me with good intentions if I ask a question or two which you may or may not be willing to answer?"

"You may ask what you will," said I. "I have nothing to conceal since hearing Miss Cumberland's explanation of her presence at the Whispering Pines."

"The question I am going to ask," he continued presently, "is one which you may consider unpardonable. Let me first express an opinion. You have not told all that you know of that evening's doings."

This called for no reply and I made none.

"I can understand your reticence if your knowledge included the fact of Miss Cumberland's heroic act and her sister's manner of death at the clubhouse."

"But it did not," I asserted, with deliberate emphasis. "I knew nothing of either. My arrival happened later. Miss Cumberland's testimony gave me my first enlightenment on these points. But I did know that the two sisters were there together, for I had a glimpse of the younger as she was leaving the house."

"You had. And are willing to state it now?"

"Assuredly. But any testimony of that kind is for the defense, and your interests are all with the prosecution. Mr. Moffat is the man who should talk to me."

"You are interested, then, in seeing young Cumberland freed?"

"I must be; he is innocent."

The man at my side turned and shot at me one glance which I met calmly. "Mr. Ranelagh, will you tell me why, when you found yourself in such a dire extremity as to be arrested for this crime on evidence as startling as to call for all and every possible testimony to your innocence, you preserved silence in regard to a fact which you must have then felt would have secured you a most invaluable witness?"

Then it was I regretted my thoughtless promise to be candid with this man. To answer were impossible, yet silence has its confidences, too. In my dilemma I turned toward him, and just then we stepped within the glare of an electric light pouring from some open doorway. I caught his eye and was astonished at the change which took place in him.

"Don't answer," he muttered volubly. "It isn't necessary. I understand the situation now, and you shall never regret that you met Caleb Sweetwater on your walk this evening. Will you trust me, sir? A detective who loves his profession is no gabbler. Your secret is as safe with me as if you had buried it in the grave."

And I had said nothing.

At the next moment he was half-way around a corner and in another moment was out of sight.

CHAPTER XXVIII. THE ARROW OF DEATH.

IN my first glance around the courtroom the next morning I sought first for Carmel and then for the detective, Sweetwater. Neither was visible. But this was not true of Ella Fulton. She had come in on her father's arm, closely followed by the erect figure of her domineering mother.

The entrance of the defendant cut short my contemplation of any mere spectator. The change in him was so marked that I was conscious of it before I really saw him. Every eye had reflected it, and it was no surprise to me when I noted the relieved, almost cheerful, aspect of his countenance as he took his place and met his counsel's greeting with a smile, the first, I believe, which had been seen on his face since his sister's death.

The crier announced the opening of the court, and the defense proceeded by the calling of Ella Fulton to the witness stand.

I need not linger over her testimony. It was very short and contained but one surprise. She had stated under direct examination that she had waited and watched for Arthur's return that whole night and was positive that he had not passed through their grounds again after that first time in the early evening. This was just what I had expected from her. But the prosecution remembered the snowfall, and in her cross examination on this point she acknowledged that it was very thick, much too thick for her to see her own gate distinctly, but added that this only made her surer of the fact she had stated, for, finding that she could not see, she had dressed herself for the storm and gone out into the driveway to watch there and had so watched until the town clock struck 3.

This did not help the prosecution. Sympathy could not fail to be with this young and tremulous girl, heroic in her love, if weak in other respects, and when on her departure from the stand she cast one deprecatory glance at the man for whom she had thus sacrificed her pride and, meeting his eye fixed upon her with anything but ingratitude, dashed and faltered till she with difficulty found her way the sentiments of the onlookers became so apparent that the judge's gavel was called into requisition before order could be restored and the next witness summoned to testify.

This witness was no less a person than Arthur himself. Recalled by his counsel, he was reminded of his former statement that he had left the clubhouse in a hurry because he heard his sister Adelaide's voice and was now asked if hers was the only voice he had heard.

His answer revealed much of his mind.

"No; I heard Carmel's answering her."

This satisfying Mr. Moffat, he was passed over to Mr. Fox, and a short cross examination ensued on this point.

"You heard both your sisters speaking?"

"Yes, sir."

"Any of their words or only their voices?"

"I heard one word."

"What word?"

"The word 'Elwood.'"

"In which voice?"

"In that of my sister Adelaide."

"And you fled?"

"Immediately."

"Leaving your two sisters alone in this cold and out of the way house?"

"I did not think they were alone."

"Who did you think was with them?"

"I have already mentioned the name."

"Yet you left them?"

"Yes. I have already explained that."

I was engaged in a mean act. I was ashamed to be caught at it by Adelaide. I preferred flight. I had no premonition of tragedy—any such tragedy as afterward occurred. I understood neither of my sisters, and my thoughts were only for myself.

"Had not this younger sister even enjoined secrecy upon you in asking you to harness the horse?"

"Yes, sir."

"Yet you heard the two together in this remote building without surprise?"

"No; I must have felt surprise, but I didn't stop to analyze my feelings. Afterward I turned it over in my mind and tried to make something out of the whole thing, but then I was far out on the links. They were having it out, I thought, in the presence of the man who had made all this trouble between them."

"And you left them to the task?"

"Yes, sir, but not without a struggle. I was minded several times to return. This I have testified to before."

"Did this struggle consume forty minutes?"

"It must have, and more, if I entered the hotel in Cuthbert road at the hour they state."

Mr. Fox gave up the game, and Mr. Moffat rested his case.

There was no testimony offered in rebuttal, and the court took a recess.

When I reassembled I cast another anxious glance around. Still no Carmel nor any signs of Sweetwater. I could understand her absence, but not his, and it was in a confusion of feeling which was fast getting the upper hand of me that I turned my attention to Mr. Moffat and the plea he was about to make for his youthful client.

I felt a sudden slow and creeping chill seize and shake me, as I have heard people say they experienced when uttering the common expression, "Some one is walking over my grave," when I heard these words, delivered in the slow and but slightly raised tones with which Mr. Moffat invariably began his address:

"May it please the court and gentlemen of the jury, my learned friend of the prosecution has shown great discretion in that, so far as appears from the trend of his examinations, he is planning no attempt to explain the many silences and the often forbidding attitude of my young client by any theory save the obvious one—the natural desire of a brother to hide his only remaining sister's connection with a tragedy of whose details he was ignorant and concerning which he had formed a theory derogatory to her position as a young and well bred woman.

"Fear for a loved one, even in one whom you will probably hear described as a dissipated man, of selfish tendencies and hitherto unbrotherly qualities is a great miracle worker. No sacrifice seems impossible which serves as a guard for one so situated and so threatened."

Here Mr. Moffat recapitulated those events, but always from the standpoint of the defendant, a standpoint which necessarily brought before the jury the many excellent reasons which his client had for supposing this crime to have resulted solely from the conflicting interests represented by that furtively passed note and the visit of two girls instead of one to the Whispering Pines. It was very convincing. At the proper moment Mr. Moffat said: "Gentlemen of the jury, you have seen the point after point of the prosecution's case demolished before your eyes by testimony which no one has had the temerity to attempt to controvert. What is left? Mr. Fox will tell you—three strong and unassailable facts: The ring found in the murdered woman's casket, the remnants of the telltale bottle discovered in the Cumberland stable and the opportunity for crime given by the acknowledged presence of the defendant on or near the scene of death."

"But are these points so vital as they seem? Let us consider them and see. My client has denied that he dropped anything into his sister's casket, much less the ring missing from that sister's finger. Dare you, then, convict on this point when, according to count, ten other persons were seen to drop flowers into this very place, any one of which might have carried this object with it?"

"And the bit of broken bottle found in or near the defendant's own stable. Is he to be convicted on the similarity it offers to the one known to have come from the clubhouse wine vault, while a reasonable doubt remains of his having been the hand which carried it there? No. Where there is a reasonable doubt no high minded jury will convict, and I claim that my client has made it plain that there is such a reasonable doubt."

"My distinguished opponent would have you believe that the defendant did not fly at the moment declared, but that he waited to fulfill the foul deed, which is the only serious matter in dispute in his so nearly destroyed case. I bear as though he were now speaking the attack which he will make upon my client when he comes to review this matter with you. Let me see if I cannot make you hear those words too." And, with a daring smile at his discomfited adversary, Alonzo Moffat launched forth into the following sarcasm:

"Arthur Cumberland, coming up the kitchen stairs, hears voices where he had expected total silence, sees light where he had left total darkness. He has two bottles in his hands or in his large coat pockets. If they are in his hands he sets them down and steals forward to listen. He has recognized the voices. They are those of his two sisters, one of whom had ordered him to hitch up the cutter for her to escape, as he had every reason to believe, the other. Curiosity—or is it some nobler feeling?—causes him to draw nearer and nearer to the room in which they have taken up their stand. He can hear their words now, and what are the words he hears? Words that would thrill the most impervious heart, call for the interference of the most indifferent. But he is made of ice, welded together with steel. He sees (for no place save one from which he can watch and see—namely, the dark dancing hall—would satisfy any man of such gigantic curiosity) Adelaide fall at Carmel's feet in recognition of the great sacrifice she has made for her. But he does not move; he falls at no one's feet; he recognizes no nobility, responds to no higher appeal. Stony and unmoved, he crouches there and watches and watches, still curious or still feeding his hate on the sufferings of the elder, the forbearance of the younger.

"And on what does he look? You have already heard, but consider it, Adelaide, despairing of happiness, decides on death for herself or sister. Both loving one man, one of the two must give way to the other. Carmel has done her part; she must now do hers. She has brought poison; she has brought glasses—three glasses for three persons, but only two are on the scene, and so she fills but two. One has only cordial in it, but the other is, as she believes, deadly. Carmel is to have her choice. But who believes that Adelaide would ever have let her drink the poisoned glass?"

"And this man looks on as the two faces confront each other—one white with the overthrust of every earthly hope, the other under the stress of suffering and a fascination of horror sufficient to have laid her dead without poison at the other one's feet. This is what he sees, a brother—and he makes no move, then or afterward, when the die cast, Adelaide succumbs to her fear and falls into a seemingly dying state on the couch."

"Does he go now? Is his hate or his cupidity satisfied? No. He remains and listens to the tender interchange of final words and all the late precautions of the elder to guard the younger woman's good name. Still he is not softened, and when, the critical moment passed, Carmel rises and totters about the room in her endeavor to fulfill the tasks enjoined upon her by her sister he glances over a death which will give him independence and glut himself with every evil thought which could blind him to the pitiful aspects of a tragedy such as few men in this world could see unmoved. A brother! "But this is not the worst. The awful cup of human greed and hatred is but filled to the brim. It has not yet overflowed. Carmel leaves the room. She has a telephonic message to deliver. She may be gone a minute; she may be gone many. Little does he care which. He must see the dead, look down on the woman who has been like a mother to him and see if her influence is forever removed, if his wealth is his and his independence forever assured."

"Safe in the darkness of the gloomy recesses of the dancing hall, he steals slowly forward. Drawn as by a magnet, he enters the room of seeming death, draws up to the pillow laden couch, pulls off first one cushion and then another till face and hands are bare and—

"Ah, there's a movement! Death has not, then, done its work. She lives—the hated one lives! And he is no longer rich, no longer independent. With a clutch he seizes her at the feeble seat of life, and as the breath ceases and her whole body becomes again inert he stoops to pull off the ring, which can have no especial value or meaning for him, and then, repelling the cushions over her, creeps forth again, takes up the bottles and disappears from the house."

"Gentlemen of the jury, this is what my opponent would have you believe. This will be his explanation of this extraordinary murder. But when his eloquence meets your ears, when you hear this arraignment and the emphasis he will place upon the few points remaining to his broken case, then ask yourself if you see such a monster in the prisoner now confronting you from the bar. I do not believe it. I do not believe that such a monster lives."

"But you say some one entered that room—some one stifled the fluttering life still remaining in that feeble breast. Some one may have, but that some one was not my client, and it is his guilt or innocence we are considering now, and it is his life and freedom for which you are responsible. No brother did that deed. No witness of the scene which hallowed this tragedy ever lifted hand against the fainting Adelaide or choked back a life which kindly fate had spared."

"Go further for the guilty perpetrator of this most inhuman act; he stands not in the dock. Guilt shows no such relief as you see in him today. Guilt would remember that his sister's testimony, under the cross examination of the people's prosecutor, left the charge of murder still hanging over the defendant's head. But the brother has forgotten this. His restored confidence in one who now represents to him father, mother and sister has thrown his own fate into the background. Will you dim that joy—sustain this charge of murder?"

"If in your sense of justice you do so you forever place this degenerate son of a noble father on the list of the most unimaginative and hate driven criminals of all time. Is he such a demon? Is he such a madman? Look in his face today and decide. I am willing to leave his cause in your hands. It could be placed in no better."

"May it please your honor and gentlemen of the jury, I am done."

A DAUGHTER'S PEACE OFFERING

Unusual Gift Softens an Obdurate Father.

You know pa wouldn't consent to Del's marriage with Jim, wouldn't allow the wedding at the house or allow either Del or Jim to come here afterward. This was because Jim had been wild and hadn't settled down. I was hard on us all, for Del was my only child, she had always been her father's pet, and his treatment almost broke her heart.

The years went by, and pa instead of softening appeared to harden, though Jim made Del a splendid husband and grew rich. They had one child, a boy, the prettiest little chap you ever saw. One day an artist saw him in his bath and was so struck with his little form that he asked leave to copy him into a picture he was painting. The picture was a success and brought the artist a fine reputation, all on account, everybody said, of the little figure in the corner.

One day Del said to me, "Ma, I'm going to send pa a present."

"I'm afraid, my dear, he'll send it right back to you."

"Maybe he will, and maybe he won't. Anyway, I'm going to try it. I'm going to put it in the dining room so that he'll see it when he comes down the first thing in the morning."

"How are you going to send it?"

"Jim and I are going to get up early and take it round. You are to let us in. We'll place it right where pa will see it the first thing when he comes into the breakfast room."

I didn't believe it would do any good, but I told Del I would help her in any way I could, so it was all arranged that they should bring their gift the next Sunday morning. On that day we breakfast at 9 o'clock, and pa does not have to go downtown to business. When Sunday came the sun was shining bright and beautiful, the birds were singing in the yard, and there was a delicious freshness in the air. I was thankful, thinking that if anything could put pa in a good humor it would be this beautiful morning. A little before 9 Jim and Del drove up to the side gate, which was hidden from the house by trees, though that wasn't necessary, for pa was shut up in his shaving room, where he couldn't see anything, and Jim carried an oblong box about three feet in length up to the side entrance. I let them in, and they went to the dining room, while I went upstairs to keep an eye on pa.

"What a pleasant day," I said, "for a family party to go for a drive in the country!"

"There's no family party except you and me," he said.

I knew that he was pining for Del, but I didn't say anything more for fear of making him ugly. I saw by the clock that it was five minutes to 9, and I went to the banister and coughed to give Jim and Del warning, then told pa that breakfast was ready. He got up with a sigh, and we went downstairs together.

We both stood mute looking at what we saw in the bay window at the end of the dining room. The marble bust that always stood on the pedestal had been removed, and in its stead was the statue of a little boy about five years old. It was of white marble—that is, so far as we could judge—and held out a pair of little arms to us.

"Great guns!" pa exclaimed.

"Little darling!" said I. "What a pity it isn't alive!"

"How do, grandpa?" cried the statue, and, tearing off its white face, it displayed the rosy features of Del's little Jim. Jumping off the pedestal, all in his white tights, he ran up to his grandpa, who bent down and took him in his arms.

I never saw pa so overcome in my life. He hugged the boy so tight that I thought he would crush him. Then Del came from the pantry and put her arms around them both. Del was laughing and crying, and pa was trying to keep from doing both. Then he put little Jim down, and without noticing that his clothes were covered with the white powder that had made the boy's tights look like marble he folded Del in his arms.

Jim—big Jim, I mean—seeing through a crack in the pantry door that the plan had been a success, came into the room, and pa put out his hand.

That was the happiest breakfast party any of us ever sat down to. I had taken pains to have a nice breakfast, though I didn't believe Del's present to her father would break through his crustiness, but hoped that it would and we would all take our Sunday morning meal together. After the breakfast we sat in the library and talked while pa and Jim smoked.

"Ma," said pa to me, "didn't you say something about a family party going for a drive? I reckon we'll have out the horses."

Pa and Jim went out to the stable, while Del and I got up a lunch. Then we started for the country. There was room for Jim and Del on the back seat, while pa had little Jim with him in front.

Who got up the statue? Why, the artist who used little Jim for a model. After the reputation and money he made out of his picture he couldn't do enough for Jim and Del and exercised all his skill on the boy's makeup and in posing him.

The fad of the Eastern rich of having peacocks to enhance the beauty of their parks has just brought people in this county to realize how scarce these birds are, says a Greensburg, Ind., dispatch. Ol Hunter, a local horse buyer, recently promised a friend in Pennsylvania that he would send him a peacock. When he gave the promise, Mr. Hunter thought it would be no trouble to obtain one, as a few years ago they were plentiful in Decatur county. He started out the other day to buy the fowl, but before he succeeded in finding one he drove more than one hundred miles. Inquiry developed the fact that peacocks are bought up as rapidly as possible by the easterners at fancy prices. Mr. Hunter's specimen attracted as much attention in the city as some rare bird from a foreign country, as it was the first seen for years.

BISHOP CHATARD

Has Imposed Strict Rule
Against Mixed Marriages.

THOUGHT SHANK MADE UP THE STATE'S LAWS

Allen Saloon Keepers Fail to Pass Muster.

Indianapolis, June 6.—Judge Orbison of superior court has denied citizenship to twenty-four applicants for citizenship in the United States, all proprietors of saloons in Haughville, because they lacked intelligence about the government. The cases were continued until the September term of the court in order that the applicants may have time to acquire some knowledge of the manner in which the country is governed.

The applicants were informed by the court that if they merely desired to become citizens of the United States in order to conduct their businesses, citizenship would not be granted them. Judge Orbison said he would not pass any applicant unless he was satisfied that the applicant wished to become a citizen because he was a believer in the United States form of government.

Under the new liquor laws the owner of a saloon must be a citizen of the United States, and this accounts for the large number of saloon keepers applying for citizenship. Judge Orbison said a thorough investigation of the saloons conducted by the applicants would be made before the September term of court, and citizenship would be denied those found violating the liquor laws.

Hungarians and Roumanians made up the larger number of applicants. One applicant stated that Mayor Shank made the laws for the state, and another said the United States was ruled by a king.

RULE OF CHURCH TO BE ENFORCED

Bishop Chatard Lays Down Law In His Diocese.

MIXED MARRIAGES OPPOSED

Hereafter a Dispensation For a Mixed Marriage Will Be Granted Only in Extraordinary Cases or Under Exceptional Circumstances—Formal Announcement to This End Made in the Cathedral at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, June 6.—In the parish of St. Peter and Paul's cathedral hereafter the rules of the Catholic church in regard to mixed marriages will be strictly enforced, according to announcement made in the pulpit of that church by the Rev. Alphonsus Smith. The announcement was authorized by Bishop Chatard. It was stated that hereafter a dispensation for a mixed marriage will be granted only in extraordinary cases or under exceptional circumstances. The Catholic church always has opposed mixed marriages, but the rule will be more strictly enforced than heretofore.

"I will admit that there have been some good mixed marriages in this parish," said Father Smith in his sermon, "but nine out of ten of such marriages do not result that way."

"It will be much more difficult hereafter to obtain a dispensation for a mixed marriage," said Father Smith, in discussing the matter afterward. "The dispensation must come from the bishop, and he intends to be more strict from now on and grant the dispensation only in exceptional cases. Each case will have to be considered on its own circumstances. A good many people think a priest's house is like a squire's office, and that they can come in here and lay down the law and get married. Some also seem to think that they can come here with a marriage license and compel us to marry them. This idea must be broken up."

DEMURRER SUSTAINED

Terre Haute's City Engineer Will Have to Amend Complaint.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 6.—Judge Rawley of the Clay circuit court sustained a demurrer to the complaint of Donn Roberts, city engineer, against Louis Gerhardt, mayor of Terre Haute, asking a permanent injunction to prevent the removal from office of Roberts by Gerhardt. Leave was given Roberts to amend the complaint.

Roberts obtained a temporary restraining order from Judge Fortune on the ground that no charges had been preferred against him and no notice of his removal for cause sent to the city council by Gerhardt. The mayor took a change of venue and Judge Rawley was sitting as special judge.

YOUNG WIFE MURDERER

Hamilton County Farmer Kills Wife and Tries to Kill Himself.

Cicero, Ind., June 6.—Harry Hiatt, twenty-four years old, shot and instantly killed his wife, Nellie Hiatt, aged twenty-one, at the home of her father, A. W. Bonn, half a mile west of Cicero. After shooting his wife Hiatt shot himself in the forehead. The bullet glanced upward and came out the top of his head. Domestic troubles caused the tragedy. Hiatt was brought to the city jail, where his wounds were dressed. He does not seem to be severely injured. Hiatt has two little girls, one three years old and the other eight months.

He Wants Monetary Damages.

Hammond, Ind., June 6.—Henry Yager of Hobart has brought suit in the Lake circuit court against Jerome Chester, son of a wealthy farmer, for $25,000 damages, charging alienation of his wife's affections. Mrs. Annie Yager and young Chester were arrested two weeks ago in a Chicago hotel by police.

Then Shot Himself.

Jasper, Ind., June 6.—While walking along a crowded street Mrs. Theresa Knabel, aged twenty-nine years, was shot at by Henry Lindenschmidt, aged thirty, who afterward shot himself in the head, and will probably die. The woman escaped unhurt. Jealousy is said to have prompted the deed.

The Same Old Story.

Columbus, Ind., June 6.—While James Hobson, aged twenty-seven years, a molder, with two other young men was boating on White river here, he playfully rocked the boat, which was capsized and he was drowned. His companions saved themselves. His body has been recovered.

PROPOSES MONUMENT TO THE KU-KLUX KLAN

Chattanooga Minister Starts a Fund In That Behalf.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 6.—Offering $25 as a nucleus, Rev W. E. Thompson, pastor of the Centenary church, of this city, in an address delivered before the annual reunion of the John B. Gordon Camp of Confederate Veterans, at Lafayette, Ga., inaugurated a national campaign for the acquisition of funds to erect a monument to the Ku-Klux.

"Were it in my power," said he, "I would erect a monument to the Ku-Klux Klan that would pierce the blue vaults of heaven. Those stanch men, tried and true, upon many a hard-fought battlefield, in the face of imposing odds, threw themselves into the yawning breach and saved Anglo-Saxon supremacy for the South. Too much praise cannot be given those brave men."

Took Law in His Own Hands.
Richmond, Va., June 6.—Charging that Walter Wingfield had ruined his home, without warning John Melton, thirty-five years old, leaped like a madman on his victim in court, shrieking, "I'll kill him and my wife, too." Before he could be stopped Melton had knocked Wingfield down and was assaulting him viciously. Wingfield was arrested Saturday night in company with Melton's wife on a charge of disorderly conduct.
